

ON THE STUMP IN VIRGINIA

Senator Daniel Makes a Great Speech at Tazewell.

FIRST VISIT FOR MANY YEARS
Barksdale and Anderson Give Scott County Democrats Three Hours of Campaign Issues.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
TAZEVELL, VA., October 31.—An audience of between five and six hundred of the best people of Tazewell county listened for fully three hours this afternoon to a masterly address by Senator John W. Daniel, in the courthouse. The house was packed to the uttermost, many people being forced to stand during the entire speech and a number more not able to gain entrance to the hall.

The speaker held his audience spell-bound until the close of his address. Mr. Daniel began his speech by saying that this was his first visit to Tazewell for twenty-three years, and that he was glad of the opportunity to address an audience of cultured Tazewell county citizens. He recalled a visit to Hon. L. H. Freery, of Uden, Utah, a former Tazewell citizen at which time he promised Mr. Freery to deliver a speech in Tazewell, and that he gladly accepted the invitation when offered him.

Mr. Daniel said that there were a great many more Democrats in Tazewell now than when he first visited here, and that a similar condition existed in all parts of the country. I would not appeal to men's feelings, said the speaker, but to their reason, patriotism and enlightened self-interest. The Republicans have almost stopped criticizing the government of Virginia because the Democrats have so administered the government that the Republicans have had nothing to criticize. The taxes have been reduced as far as possible; the finances of the State have been managed and Virginia's debts have been taken care of. The Democrats of Virginia have recently reduced the State taxes 25 per cent, so that the farmer can take the 25 cents and put it in his pocket, or use it upon his family. The good book says there is no perfect, said the speaker, but Republican spellbinders seemed to have believed this statement.

Mr. Daniel said that the rough rider President who severely criticized Thomas Jefferson as one of the worst of Presidents and the author who wrote the book saying in it that Shakespeare was not a poet could get together and have a rough rider time.

TERRITORY WITHOUT BLOOD.
The speaker said that Jefferson had acquired the territory of Louisiana without the loss of a life or the shedding of a drop of blood. He also showed that under Democratic administration more territory had been acquired than under the Republican administration and that the Republican party was dead and in its stead had sprung up an Imperialist party. Neither the Philippines nor Cuba will ever be the home of Americans, said Mr. Daniel, because the climate is such that Americans cannot live in the tropical country. The United States army will not allow any of its officers to stay at either place longer than two years. The same thing is true of the English generals, who cannot live in the tropical possessions of John Bull longer than three years.

The American Tobacco Company has adopted the same rule, not allowing its employees to stay in Cuba but two years, consequently we have no use for the Philippines. We have paid $250,000 apiece for the Philippines and have not them but don't know what to do with them. Mr. Daniel dwelt at some length on the tariff, saying that some Tazewell people seem to think that the tariff was sunshine gold mines, etc.

He said all taxes ought to be limited to the expenses of the government economically administered. In speaking of the Philippines, he said that six hundred million dollars had been spent in the Philippines and not a cent had been returned to this country, but in its stead there was a deficit in the Treasury and that if the long session had been held as usual, certain bills which were on the calendar would have been presented and passed, taking large expenditures, and that the Treasury of the United States would have been emptied and that the Republicans would have suffered at the polls for the bad management.

The bills which would have been called upon were the ship subsidy and a bill for building railroads in the Philippines. He criticized Secretary Shaw, who is touring the Southwest, for not saying anything about the rottenness in the Post-office Department and the Land Office.

Mr. Daniel was frequently greeted with applause. He goes from here to Roanoke, where, he speaks to-morrow night.

AT GATE CITY.
Barksdale and Anderson Address
the Democrats of Scott.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
GATE CITY, VA., Oct. 31.—Senator Barksdale and Attorney-General W. A. Anderson spoke to a good crowd at the courthouse today. Senator Barksdale was introduced by A. K. Morrison in an appropriate speech. The senator from Halifax held the attention of the audience for one and one-half hours, dwelling on the candidates for Congress. He said that Wysox was most able to represent the Ninth District, and declared that Siemp hoped to buy his election to Congress.

He said that Wysox would not accept the certificate of election if tainted with fraud or votes purchased. He described the tariff and trust issue, and asserted that the Republicans were of vital interest in the present campaign.

E. M. Carter introduced Attorney-General W. A. Anderson in eloquent remarks. The Attorney-General spoke for two and one-half hours, holding his audience spell-bound. He entered into the issues and made a favorable impression on his hearers.

Rixey and Tucker.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
ALEXANDRIA, VA., Oct. 31.—The first local Democratic mass meeting of the present campaign was held this evening in the Opera House, with a large audience, including many ladies. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Alexandria Democratic Committee, and was presided over by Mr. Charles Bendheim, chairman of the committee, who discussed the issues of the campaign in a forcible style. It was his first speech here, and he made a fine impression. This is probably the last speech of the campaign here.

DEMOCRATS IN FULTON

Lamb, Willard, Montague and Wallace Speakers at Last Night's Rally.

SPOKE TO A FULL HOUSE

The Democrats of Fulton were given an evening of campaign oratory last night at Nelson's Hall, where Congressman John Lamb, Lieutenant-Governor Joseph E. Willard, Mr. R. L. Montague and Mr. Charles M. Wallace, Jr., made addresses on behalf of Parker, Davis and Lamb.

The large hall was well filled when the meeting began, and though it was later than 10:30 o'clock when Mr. Wallace, the last speaker, had concluded, few had left. The various speakers were given close attention throughout their addresses and were frequently applauded as they arranged the Republican party and reviewed the record of President Roosevelt.

The greatest applause of the evening was that which greeted Mr. Montague's fine tribute to William Jennings Bryan, and incidentally it demonstrated that though twice defeated, the eloquent Nebraskan is still the idol of the masses.

The meeting was presided over by ex-Congressman J. H. Lawder, who introduced the speakers, first presenting Captain John Lamb, candidate for re-election for his fifth consecutive term in the House of Representatives. Captain Lamb was well received, and made a characteristically earnest and effective speech. He not only reviewed his service in Congress and the achievements secured for this district in the way of patronage and appropriations, even from a hostile Congress, but he took up the issues of the campaign and attacked the Republican policies vigorously. In combating the Republican policy of protection Captain Lamb paid fine tribute to American labor, and ridiculed the idea that men with their skill and intelligence needed protection in this day when America led the world in the manufacturing and industrial fields. The speaker placed upon Mr. Roosevelt the burden of having revived the race issue and resurrected sectionalism.

Captain Willard Speaks.
Chairman Lawder next presented Captain Joseph E. Willard, Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia. Mr. Willard modestly assured the audience that he was not an orator, nor an experienced public speaker, but made a clean, clear, forceful, business-like discussion of the issues of the campaign. He paid his respects to President Roosevelt on the Booker Washington incident, and in doing so stated that Mr. Roosevelt had a perfect right as an individual to invite a negro to dine, if he so desired. He made the point, however, that in doing so, the President was holding out the wrong idea to the negro, by this act holding out to the race the hope and prospect of social equality, instead of assuring the black man that he must fit himself for citizenship by good morals, intelligence and culture. Mr. Willard described the fat-frying methods of the administration in selecting Mr. Carter as his secretary of Commerce and Labor, and by virtue of that office the custodian of the secrets of the treasury, the raiser of campaign funds. It was not, perhaps, literally a hold-up at the muzzle of a revolver, but as effective a measure of making the trusts shut their eyes to the speaker's expressed disapproval of his hostility to corporations in themselves, and on the other hand, declared that they were not only necessary, but valuable in our industrial system.

Mr. H. Lynch Montague was next introduced. This was Mr. Montague's debut in this campaign. He spoke for half an hour and aroused his audience to great enthusiasm. His tribute to Bryan, which evoked applause, was especially fine, ascribing to him the most conspicuous virtues and points of strength possessed by Calhoun, Webster and Clay, and possessing a greater hold on the masses of the people than any man since Jackson.

Violated Treaties.
Taking up the foreign policy of the administration, the speaker charged that it had violated treaties and imposed upon a weaker power. He and the Democratic party generally were in favor of an isthmian canal, but a canal secured with honor and not by a violation of sacred pledges and imposition upon a weaker power. He paraphrased the famous saying of Lincoln in regard to slavery, and applied it to the Philippines when he declared with conviction that this country cannot exist part empire and part republic.

Mr. Montague discussed the tariff at some length, showing that it was a tax upon the people and not a mere means of raising revenue for the support of the government.

It was after 10 when Mr. Wallace was introduced, and many had turned to leave the hall, but on hearing his voice they returned and remained throughout the speech. Mr. Wallace made a ringing speech and aroused considerable enthusiasm. He too, arraigned Mr. Roosevelt for injecting the race issue into the campaign, and for reviving sectionalism by his acts and utterances. His criticism on the executive power was severe and found response in the expression of approval of the audience. In discussing the tariff, Mr. Wallace adopted as his text, "By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them," and he ridiculed the Republican claims of prosperity. He traced the political history sufficiently far into the past to show that hard times and panics were not attributable to Democratic policies, and that on the contrary the greatest that have ever depressed the industries of this country came under Republican rule.

In concluding his speech, of which but a mere outline can be given, Mr. Wallace urged the Democrats of Richmond to sweep before their own doors; that is to say to see that the Democratic majority was as large as it was possible to make it.

RALLY AT SANGER HALL.
Williams and Sears to Address the Democracy There To-night.

A rousing Democratic rally will be held by the Democrats of Richmond at Sanger Hall under the auspices of the City Democratic Committee, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Hon. Samuel W. Williams, of Wytheville, and State Senator J. B. Sears, of Spotsylvania county. Both Mr. Williams and Mr. Sears received flattering votes for election at large at the recent State convention, and each is recognized as an orator of power. Mr. Williams has just returned from a great campaign tour of the Fifth District, where he has borne the brunt of Congressman Swanson, and Senator Sears has done fine work for the Democracy in Tidewater.

A brass band will be present to add to the enthusiasm with lively music, and a great crowd is assured. A number of prominent Democrats of this city will occupy seats on the stage. Mr. Minister Folkes will present the speakers.

DR. PRICE FOUND DEAD.
Housemaid First to See Body of Philadelphia Physician.

A Philadelphia special of Saturday night says:
Entering the office of Dr. Mordecai Price, adjoining his residence, at No. 1334 Spring Garden Street, early this morning, a housemaid found the body of Dr. Price lying on the floor. He had been dead for several hours, probably since a few minutes before 11 o'clock on Friday night, when he was heard to enter the office by one of his daughters.

Apoplexy, paralysis or some other cause of sudden death evidently had stricken Dr. Price almost as soon as he crossed the threshold. He had not removed his coat and he still grasped the handle of his instrument case.

Dr. Price, who was among the foremost gynecologists of the country and an authority on diseases of the abdomen, was a native of Rockingham county, Va., where he was born in 1814. He was graduated from the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania in 1836. He began specializing early in his chosen practice of the kind in the country.
